TIME COUNTS FOR WATER ISSUES

2020 is a turning point in contemporary history and calls for us to resynchronize humanity and nature, to restore balance. Now is the time for us to commit to a greater sense of solidarity, greater equity, and greater respect for the Earth's resources.

At this critical juncture, I am honoured to present, in collaboration with my dear friend H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco, an initiative where commitment and generosity collide in a unique way, in support of global water issues and climate resilience—which are at the core of the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation.

Our foundations are proud to join forces with Phillips Auction House to present the TIME COUNTS charitable initiative, as part of the Racing Pulse Watch Auction, offering 11 collectible timepieces from incredible provenance and a time-related experience in support of global water issues and environmental preservation.

TIME COUNTS will also enable both of our organizations to fund a jointly selected project, which will improve climate resilience and the living conditions of communities in dire need, improving access to safe water, sanitation and hygiene services.

Watch aficionados, donors, and bidders: we wholeheartedly thank you for your invaluable support. We invite you to bid generously in support of a cause that is truly dear to our hearts. Together, let's take action, especially now when the world needs us more than ever.

Sincerely,

Guy Laliberté
Co-chair, TIME COUNTS

The objectives supported by TIME COUNTS

TACKLING GLOBAL WATER ISSUES AND IMPROVING THE LIVING CONDITIONS
OF SOME OF THE MOST VULNERABLE
POPULATIONS AROUND THE WORLD

In the wake of COVID-19, there’s never been more pressure on the global community to address water issues. Handwashing being one of the most important behaviors to decrease the propagation of all kinds of viruses, it goes without saying that safe water needs to be accessible. Unfortunately, over 2.2 billion people lack access to safe water at home.

All net proceeds from the TIME COUNTS charitable initiative will go to improving the living conditions of the most vulnerable populations around the world by providing sustainable access to safe water and encouraging the adoption of healthy hygiene behaviors.

TIME COUNTS will also enable One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation to fund a large-scale project resulting from a joint call for proposals launched earlier this year by both foundations. Applicant organizations have submitted projects to improve resilience and ensure sustainable and equitable access to safe water, sanitation, and hygiene (WASH) services for communities in need, with particular emphasis placed on issues affecting extremely poor and marginalized populations. The final selection will be announced in early 2021.

Together, let’s make the world a more sustainable place for all.

Phillips will remit to One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation the net proceeds from the Buyer’s premium.

One Drop counts over 12 years of turning water into action with projects that will soon have transformed the lives of over 2.1 million people around the world.

The Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation

Inspired by his own observations and in the light of the alarming scientific evidence, H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco made a personal commitment by launching, in 2006, his Foundation to act against the environmental dangers threatening our planet and making populations vulnerable. The Foundation focuses its efforts on three principal domains of action: climate change, biodiversity and water resources, and funds initiatives in the fields of research and studies, technological innovation and socially aware practices. In order to take action for the protection of nature, the Foundation supports projects in three main geographical regions: the Mediterranean Basin, the Polar Regions and the Least Developed Countries.

Given the nature of show business, there are a lot of wardrobe discussions behind the scenes at CNBC’s entrepreneurial reality hit, Shark Tank—everything must be in its right place, right down to who is wearing what watch. With a variety of panelists helming the show, the new guest Sharks, ever-changing set design, and attire - all can vary drastically from one episode to the next. Television mainstay Kevin “Mr. Wonderful” O’Leary is an exception to the rule.

He always wears the same uniform: black tie, white shirt, and dark suit with deftly coordinated tie pin, custom designed skull cufflinks, and the singular red Rubber B© watch strap.

For Season 12 of Shark Tank, the business magnate was tasked with selecting eight wristwatches to put in rotation and, without reluctance, his first pick was this classic Rolex Cosmograph Daytona with white dial and ceramic bezel, and his signature red watch band.

This Rolex Daytona is a perennial favorite of the Shark Tank wardrobe team in no small part due to its camera appeal. The present watch, a reference 116500LN, was released to great expectations in 2016 and thrilled watch enthusiasts. It was the first stainless steel Daytona model featuring a Cerachrom bezel and became an instant success. Today, it still remains incredibly difficult to obtain due to the model’s enormous demand thanks to its superb aesthetics and icon status.

Generously donated by the Canadian entrepreneur and television personality, Mr. Wonderful’s Rolex Daytona with his signature Shark Tank red band is being sold to support the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation.

December 2020

There are very few artifacts that become trophies for the important milestones in life. Watches are that, and that is why I own a vast collection of them. In today’s world, no one needs a watch; after all your cell phone keeps perfect time. Yet fine timepieces are more coveted than ever.

I collect them to honor the men and women who dedicate their lives to the fine artistic craft of watch making. Each one of my watches has a story, a deal I closed, a place I visited or an important event in my life. I own watches with all of these life moments imbedded in them. When I wear the piece, the memories come cascading back.

I began my journey onto television over 25 years ago. I worked for many legendary producers and directors all over the world on shows such as Discovery Channels Project Earth, CBC’s Dragons Den and Redemption Inc. and ABC’s Shark Tank. When we began work on Shark Tank over 12 years ago, we had no idea it would turn into the global iconic platform it has. As the show grew in popularity, it brought my watch collection into the spotlight with it! Early in the series I became known as Mr. Wonderful, the Shark with the red watch band. The origin of this detail was from a talented wardrobe director that thought a red band worked well with my black suit, as she would say “it really pops”.

Very few people understand the role of wardrobe on a television production like Shark Tank. Every detail is heavily scrutinized to be camera friendly and to be in sync with the productions set design, look and feel. Long before I show up every year the wardrobe director has approved every watch, cuff link and tie bar that I will wear. For years now, and for continuity, I wear a red band on every timepiece featured on the show.

For the last three years the perennial favorite of the Shark Tank wardrobe team has been this Rolex Daytona. Very few watch dials have the camera presence of this classic. You can recognize its look from 20 yards away. The red band marries the black ceramic bezel to my black suit and the white dial becomes pure eye candy to the camera. Even the camera team love this watch. We talk about it each season. I have also worn it on CNBC, Good Morning America, CNN, BBC and many other outlets and as a result this Daytona and its red band has been seen on my wrist by hundreds of millions of people around the world.

I rarely ever sell or trade any of my timepieces they mean too much to me. This is an exception. When the organizers of the One Drop Foundation reached out to me to donate a watch to the auction, I did not hesitate. There is a global mandate and I understand its importance. I thank you for your purchase knowing that the proceeds are going to an important cause, after all water is the essence of life.

Nevertheless, when it came time to part with this watch I had a heavy heart, yes, I can get a new Rolex to replace it, but it won’t be this Daytona. This Daytona has been on an incredible journey with me; this Daytona is a one-of-a-kind. It can never be replaced and so it is with important timepieces. They become irreplaceable and, in a sense, priceless. I hope you cherish it as much as I do.

Thank you for your understanding and support.

Kevin O’Leary

Ferdinand Porsche — A fine and attractive PVD- coated stainless steel chronograph wristwatch with day, date, 24-hours indication, and bracelet. Donated by Rory S. Kaplan to support the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation

Manufacturer	Ferdinand Porsche

Reference No.	7176
Case No.	35'419
Model Name	Porsche Design
Material	Black PVD stainless steel
Calibre	Automatic, cal. Lemania 5100
Bracelet/Strap	Black PVD-coated stainless steel, max overall length 210mm
Clasp/Buckle	Black PVD-coated stainless steel deployant clasp
Dimensions	40.5mm Diameter

Estimate	$1,000-2,000 • €850-1,700

After catching Tom Cruise donning a Porsche Design Chronograph in Top Gun and Andy Gibb wearing it on television, Kaplan was mesmerized by the design brilliance, as well as the sleek, modern, and masculine refinement, of this ground-breaking, all-black wristwatch.

To Rory’s delight, on the occasion of his 28th birthday, Rory’s parents and his first wife gifted him the Porsche Design Chronograph offered here. It would later grace his wrist during the most memorable moments of his career. A few months later, Jermaine Jackson tapped Rory to play alongside him and his brothers on the legendary Jacksons Victory Tour, Michael’s first since his solo album debut with the chart-topping Thriller. And the watch went with him: “I considered the watch my good luck charm—I wore it with pride every day during rehearsals, and never played a show without it.”

Orfina’s Porsche Design chronograph wristwatch was first released in 1972, and was an early example of co-branding between the horological world and one of the world’s legendary car manufacturers, Porsche. This watch carries the DNA and philosophy of the founder’s grandson, Ferdinand Alexander Porsche, who inspired Porsche to create a chronograph as an accessory for all Porsche 911 drivers. In the early 1970’s, all black watches were extremely rare. An exception to the rule, the present watch is an austere black with a black PVD-coated stainless steel case, white numerals, and a bright orange chronograph hand.

Preserved in excellent overall condition and generously donated by Rory S. Kaplan, it is being sold to benefit the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation.

Model Name	Big Pilot Watch Edition, Le Petit Prince
Material	Stainless steel
Calibre	Automatic, cal. 51111, 42 jewels
Bracelet/Strap	Leather
Clasp/Buckle	Stainless steel IWC deployant clasp
Dimensions	46.2mm Diameter

$6,000-12,000 •
€5,100-10,200

Accessories
Accompanied by IWC leather watch pouch, signed letter from David Coulthard, and additional leather strap

IWC’s Big Pilot collection, first released in 2002, was inspired by the World War II pilot’s watch named “Beobachtungsuhren”or “Observation”, with an oversized case permitting the use of large dials for high legibility, and a large crown for ease of setting the hacking (or stop-seconds) mechanism. The present Le Petit Prince model was introduced in 2016 featuring a midnight blue dial, and a return to a more vintage-style dial layout. Featuring a luminescent triangle at 12 o’clock with two dots on either side, the design was intended to allow a pilot to immediately orient the watch in any position.

Similar to other IWC pilot’s watches, the model pays homage to Antoine de Saint-Exupery and his legendary book “Le Petit Prince”. The caseback is engraved with the little prince in his coat and with his sword.

David Marshall Coulthard—nicknamed DC—joined the Williams Formula One team as a test driver in 1993, and after competing in eight grands prix for the team in the 1994 season, he became a full-time F1 driver the following year. In 1995 he won the Portuguese Grand Prix and finished third in the championship. In 2005, Mr. Coulthard moved to the newly formed Red Bull Racing team. By the time he retired from Formula One in 2008, he had notched up 535 points, making him the highest scoring British driver of all time.

The connection between racing cars and watches seems natural: it’s all about time and precision. For racing legend David Coulthard, it has more to do with functionality, describing his wristwatches “timeless works of engineering art.”

“I think it’s to do with functionality. I like a mechanical watch in order to understand the design and engineering behind it. You know you’re looking for something which somehow, for some amazing reason, maybe not known at the time of its launch, has become a classic. And I’m more for finding that experience, and being part of that, than looking for the latest and greatest.” — David Coulthard, IWC Racing Team Launch, 2018

The present watch is in excellent overall condition and was generously donated by Mr. Coulthard, and is being sold to benefit the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation.

The 20th century was a period of horological firsts from truly modern wristwatches, to the introduction of “tool” watches, to the golden age of mechanical watchmaking with some of the most iconic wristwatches ever produced. Technological innovation was in demand, and along with complicated wristwatches like perpetual calendar chronograph watches with moon phase, Swiss makers continued to produce classic gentleman’s wristwatches that were cherished both for their form and function. By the 1950s, many brands were introducing practical, self-winding watches with date, and these elegant men’s timepieces enjoyed enormous popularity.

The present Jaeger-LeCoultre from the 1960s features their in-house caliber K881 introduced in 1959. It was Jaeger-LeCoultre’s first self-winding movement featuring a centrally-mounted, 360-degree winding rotor. Jaeger-LeCoultre began production of automatic movements in 1947 with a bumper system, and continued to improve upon it with the K881 becoming one of their most important, with elements of its design still in use today.

This lovely 18 karat pink gold Jaeger-LeCoultre stands out with its remarkable provenance. It was given by Bono, of the Irish rock band, U2, to his father, Brendan Robert Hewson. In his own words, he wasn’t an easy man to give anything to. Since his father’s passing, Bono kept this timepiece with him. This lot has been generously donated by Bono to benefit the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation.

hexagonal, white gold screws, and a dial with tapisserie motif. The case, bracelet and bezel were hand-finished with an alteration of mirror polishing and satin-brushing. For the first time, steel was ennobled to the same status as gold.

The present example is a modern representative of this landmark line of wristwatches. The reference 15202 was launched in 2000, and then updated in 2012 in celebration of the Royal Oak’s 40th anniversary. It is powered by the same legendary caliber 2121 as the original, however this time, contrary to the original model, it can be admired through the sapphire caseback. Collectors consider the reference 15202 as the modern Royal Oak to have as it shares so many attributes with regards to case size, movement and overall looks to the now iconic reference 5402.

This unique example was generously donated by the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation, and is being sold to benefit the missions of One Drop and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation. In brand new condition, it is the only Royal Oak known with H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco signature engraved on the steel caseback surrounding the sapphire crystal. The watch is complete with warranty, hang tag and presentation box, and with this legendary model difficult to find, it offers passionate collectors a superb opportunity to own one of the world’s most sought-after timepieces, while benefitting causes dedicated to providing safe water in disadvantaged communities around the world.

The history of watch complications is a fascinating view into horology’s past, and some of the most intriguing watches ever produced. “Grande Complication” watches are the ultimate expression of watchmaking at its very finest. They are mechanical works of art that bring together three refined complications: a minute repeater, a perpetual calendar and a split-seconds chronograph. While collectors today see them in wristwatch format, their lineage dates back to well over a century.

Swiss Haute Horlogerie manufacturer Audemars Piguet has, since its founding in 1875, created exceptional complications under its own name but also supplied movements to others. Since 1882, the Manufacture has made a point of keeping the Grande Complication at the spearhead of its production even during times of crisis, passing on this ancestral craftsmanship from one generation to the next. In 2016, Phillips was honoured to auction an extremely rare and previously unknown Audemars Piguet Grande Complication Clock Watch from 1892 with no fewer than 11 complications.

In the early 2000s, Audemars Piguet made the bold decision to create a line of rare Open worked Grande Complication wristwatches, and they chose the Royal Oak model to house this spectacular movement. Released in 1972 in the midst of the quartz crisis, the Royal Oak brought the watchmaking industry in a new direction. As the world’s first high-end sports watch in stainless steel, the Royal Oak designed by famed horologist Gérald Genta revolutionized high-end watches with a monobloc case featuring an octagonal bezel secured by eight hexagonal white gold screws.

Phillips is very pleased to offer this set of four unique examples interweaving ancestral craftsmanship and avant-garde design. The four open worked models, each numbered ‘1/1’, in 18-karat white, pink and yellow gold, as well as stainless steel, feature the in-house, self-winding caliber 2885. As stated by Audemars Piguet, the caliber combines “the three categories of horological complications represented by short-time measurement, striking mechanisms, and astronomical indications”, that was “hand-crafted by a single master watchmaker in Audemars Piguet Grande Complication workshop”. These Grandes Complications watches, freshly serviced by Audemars Piguet in Le Brassus, are being sold to benefit The One Drop Foundation, a non-profit organization striving to provide access to safe water in all communities, and the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation. Each watch is accompanied by the original dated warranty from the Audemars Piguet Boutique in New York City, the original wooden Audemars Piguet presentation box, custom-made, blue One Drop presentation box, and an Audemars Piguet Resonance Box in the form of a piano. These unique boxes were designed to amplify the sound of the minute repeater, and were crafted by Stéphane Lassueur a talented cabinet-maker and marquetry specialist.

Audemars Piguet’s Grande Complications are true gems not only for their modern-day appeal and wearability, but also for the watchmaking legacy they uphold. These very rare timepieces are a unique opportunity to own wonderfully preserved examples of these iconic masterpieces by Audemars Piguet.

Through One Drop’s founder Guy Laliberté and his passion for watches, a long-term relationship was born with Audemars Piguet which resulted in a meaningful collaboration.

The Audemars Piguet Foundation has been a funder of a One Drop project in El Salvador from 2012 to 2014. Thanks to this collaboration, One Drop has been able to include eco-energetic stoves to significantly decrease the use of wood for the preparation of food and, therefore, preserve the forests in the region where One Drop implemented its water, sanitation and hygiene projects. Audemars Piguet has also donated exquisite watches to be auctioned off at One Drop’s flagship fundraising event, One Night for One Drop in Las Vegas. The amounts raised through these auctions enabled One Drop to improve the living conditions of thousands of people in Latin America, Africa and India.

Water is of the essence

I've always had a passion for watches. They're fascinating little machines—intricate, miniature mechanical worlds you can wear on your wrist! I've always wondered what it would be like to slip inside one, and stand amidst the complex, perfectly tuned movement, quietly listening to time ticking by—like Charlie Chaplin inside a great big time machine. I'd have the impression I could control time: move backwards to the world of memories, move forwards to the realm of dreams...

The stunning timepiece you're holding in your hands is truly outstanding. It's number One in a series of Grande Complication watches created by Swiss watchmaker Audemars Piguet. It had a very special place in my collection and in my heart, but now that it belongs to you, it has taken on a new life, metaphorically—through the One Drop Foundation.

Its destiny has suddenly changed. From this minute on, this watch will save lives. There's a global crisis raging, and water is at its core. Time is ticking relentlessly for millions of people without access to safe water. For them, the time is now.

If only we could flip reality upside down, like an hourglass, and buy ourselves more time, we could start over again and get it right this time around. But until every single man, woman and child on the planet has access to safe drinking water, there's much work to be done.

In the meantime, I truly hope you'll take pleasure in owning this exceptionally beautiful mechanical wonder, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Rest assured that your timepiece will help us change the world... One Drop at a time.

With gratitude,

Guy Laliberté
