Lazos de Agua Program to Bring Safe Water Access & Resources to more than 200,000 people across Latin America

One Drop, the Inter-American Development Bank, The Coca-Cola Foundation and FEMSA Foundation investing US$25 million to support water programs across five countries

LAS VEGAS, March 3, 2017 – One Drop, the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), The Coca-Cola Foundation and FEMSA Foundation, today announced a US$25 million initial investment in Lazos de Agua, an initiative to provide 200,000 people with access to safe and affordable water, hygiene and improved sanitation services (WASH) in Mexico, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Colombia and Paraguay by 2021.

Lazos de Agua has a unique approach to promote behavioral change in adopting adequate water use and hygiene practices through social arts. Combined with infrastructure, technical training and access to capital, the program uses The ABC approach that combines three key components:

- Access: Financing infrastructure projects.
- Behavior: Fostering community mobilization and encouraging dialogue around culturally sensitive subjects to increase the awareness and change behaviors of habits on water use and sanitation.
- Capital: Granting access to technical training and financial support to enable households to benefit from market-based solutions.

The Coca Cola Foundation and FEMSA Foundation have together committed to US$10 million. The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) has committed up to US$5 million, of which US$2.5 million has already been approved as technical cooperation in Paraguay and Nicaragua. One Drop and its donors will invest US$10 million over the same period.
Lazos de Agua will double down on the ABC approach in a transformative way. It is clear that constructing water and sanitation facilities, while critically important, is not enough to transform the lives of the beneficiaries. Most WASH projects typically emphasize infrastructure, and neglect the social or behavioral dimensions that have a significant impact on building awareness and supporting community adoption. This program aims to invest in sustainable, effective long-term solutions for communities to improve health and, in turn, foster community advancement.

Today, approximately 36 million people lack access to safe drinking water and more than 100 million lack access to adequate sanitation across Latin America and the Caribbean. By providing access to WASH services, Lazos de Agua programs will support reducing these figures in at risk communities and will also serve as a key opportunity to reduce mortality rates among newborns and toddlers in 5 countries.
